

Diocese of Denver

ELIZABETH KELLY, Correspondent.
The Intermountain and Colorado Catholic is placed on sale at the James Clarke church goods house, 647 California street, Denver, Colo.

Monday, the Feast of St. Rose of Lima, was selected by the Sisters of Mercy for the formal profession of nine candidates for admission to the order. The nine young women who had completed their novitiate and were professed by Bishop Matz, were present: Sister Gilda, S. J.; Sister M. Walsh and Sister M. Gilda. The service was in the chapel at Mercy hospital.

The young women who made their final vows, their residence and the name given each, follow: Sister Catherine McCaffrey, Pittsburgh; Sister Mary Hieronymus, Miss Ida McCaffrey, Pittsburgh; Sister Mary Isabel, Miss Mary Caldwell, Leavenworth; Sister Mary Josephine, Miss Mary Caldwell, Leavenworth; Sister Mary Martin, Miss Virginia Mercer, Patterson, N. J.; Sister Mary Louisa, Miss Josephine Estel, Central City; Sister Mary Eulalia, Miss Elizabeth Murphy, New York City; Sister Mary Thecla, Miss Mary O'Malley, New York; Sister Mary Germaine, Miss Della Flinn, Ireland; Sister Mary Celestina.

Only a few witnessed the ceremony. From Pittsburgh, Thomas McCaffrey and his son Elmer and daughter Clara, with Miss Katherine Dillon, came on account of the Misses McCaffrey being among the new nuns. Elmer McCaffrey was formerly a student at the College of the Sacred Heart in Denver and is well known here.

Father Peter Curran, known to all of the priests of the diocese of Denver during his long and patient quest for health out in Colorado, died at Gloucester, N. J., last night. For six years Father Curran had spent his time first in one hospital and then in another in the hope of becoming strong again. He was in Denver for a time, and while here underwent a serious operation at St. Joseph's hospital. Later he was chaplain of St. Francis hospital in Colorado Springs. His home before coming to Colorado was at Charlestown, Mass., where he was taken by a brother, who arrived during the week. Father Curran was at one time chaplain at Mount Saint Scholastica's academy, in Canon City.

Right Rev. Bishop Hennessy of the diocese of Wichita paid a brief visit to Bishop N. C. Matz last week as he was passing through Denver.

Father Deaver, pastor of the Catholic church at Como, was in Denver for a short time last week.

Father McMahon from Mount Saint Mary's seminary, Baltimore, a former class mate of Father H. L. McMenamin, was a visitor at the cathedral.

Miss Holla Hilly and Edward Russell were married at the cathedral parish residence last Thursday by Father J. P. McDonough. Mrs. Russell came from Norton, Kan., but the two will make their home in Denver.

Mrs. Della Comerford died on Thursday, Aug. 26, at St. John's hospital. The body arrived in Denver on Tuesday, Aug. 31, and was interred in the family lot in Mount Olivet cemetery, after the reading of the funeral service in Holy Family church, Berkeley. Mrs. Comerford was the wife of Patrick Comerford of 4114 E. Union street, who is thus doubly bereaved, as his baby son, Thomas, was laid to rest in Mount Olivet only three weeks before Mrs. Comerford passed away. Besides her husband, Mrs. Comerford is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Lee of County Galway, Ireland.

Mrs. Anna Crowley died on Tuesday, Aug. 24, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. James Burke, 337 Josephine street. The funeral took place from Annunciation church Thursday afternoon. Interment was in Mount Olivet cemetery.

Mrs. Mary Bowen died on Saturday, Aug. 28, at her apartments in the Victoria, 1631 Washington street. Funeral occurred Monday from Logan Avenue chapel, with requiem mass by Rev. J. F. McDonough. Burial was in Mount Olivet cemetery. Mrs. Bowen was the mother of Miss Katherine Bowen, the well known nurse.

Margaret O'Brien, the 7-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. O'Brien, died on Wednesday, Aug. 25, at the family home, 2506 Fremont street, and was laid to rest in Mount Olivet cemetery Friday afternoon, funeral service being read by Rev. J. P. Carrigan at St. Patrick's church.

The funeral of J. T. Flynn took place Tuesday morning, Aug. 21, with requiem mass at St. Patrick's church, Rev. J. P. Carrigan officiating. Burial was in Mount Olivet cemetery.

Rev. Father Harvey a Visitor.

Father J. H. Harvey of St. Louis spent a few days of last week visiting the family of his brother in Denver. Father Tettemer remained over to assist in the services at Logan Avenue chapel on Sunday, preaching at the 10 and 11 o'clock masses. The St. Louis priest has just completed the erection of a handsome new church for his congregation, and the brief visit here was in the nature of a well earned rest for him. His customary eloquence delighted the congregations at the two late masses last Sunday.

Funeral of Rev. Father Curran.

The funeral of Father Curran, which took place from St. Mary's church at Colorado Springs last week, was largely attended by priests from all parts of the state. The patience with which Father Curran bore his sufferings for years endeared him to all who had occasion to meet him. At the various institutions where he served as chaplain from time to time he was loved.

From Denver, Fathers James M. Walsh and M. W. Donovan went down to Colorado Springs to assist in the services. A brother came from Prince Edward Island to attend the funeral, but the body was not taken back to Father Curran's native land.

Father Baber, pastor of St. Mary's, who had known Father Curran for years, celebrated the requiem mass with Father Donovan as deacon and Father Walsh as sub-deacon. Father Clarke, chaplain of Gloucester sanitarium, preached the funeral sermon which was an eloquent presentation of the splendid life and attitudes of the dead priest. During the time that he was suffering in a Denver hospital, and when he subsequently traveled about Colorado in the hope of recovering his health, Father Curran was always resigned to the fate he knew had been mapped out for him. May he rest in peace.

Schools Reopen.

The parochial schools of the city opened for the fall term on Tuesday of this week. Few changes in the faculties are announced. At Immaculate Conception High school Sister Amato takes the place of Sister Mary Michael as the English grade teacher. Sister Gervaise is the new superioress of Sacred Heart school in East Denver. St. Mary's academy opened a week earlier than the parochial schools, with a larger enrollment than ever before in the history of the convent. This is saying much in view of the fact that it is the oldest educational institution in Colorado. This will probably be the last year that old St. Mary's on California street will be used for the purpose for which it was built. The march of progress has crowded it out and the new convent will be among fashionable residences on Capitol hill. It will be erected at the corner of Fourteenth and Pennsylvania avenues. The mother general of the Sisters of Loretto will be in Denver this month to officiate at the breaking of ground for the new building. The college of the Sacred Heart opened on Tuesday with several important changes in its faculty.

Altar Society Meets.

On next Sunday the officers of the Altar and Rosary society of the cathedral parish will be elected for the ensuing year. An encouraging financial statement will also be forthcoming on that occasion.

Plans are on foot for another of those delightful parish socials which are helping the young and old people of the cathedral congregation to become acquainted. The next will probably be held in October, but the date and the place are yet to be announced.

Our Louis Riel, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Mabo, was baptized by Father H. L. McMenamin at the Logan Avenue chapel last Sunday.

Funeral of Mrs. Conahan.

The funeral of Mrs. Elizabeth Conahan, an elderly woman who has for years been a devoted member of the cathedral parish, took place from Logan Avenue chapel on Tuesday. Father Havorka, who is temporarily assisting at the chapel, officiated at the high mass of requiem.

Visitors to Seattle.

Mrs. Joseph C. Hagus and sister, Miss Mary Kelly, of the cathedral parish left Monday night for Seattle, Portland, San Francisco and Los Angeles. They will be gone about two months.

Rev. Father W. T. Gleason of the diocese of Trenton, who is visiting relatives in Denver, officiated at the church of St. Mary Magdalene last Sunday. His sermon at the last mass was an inspiration.

Gift to St. Vincent's Home.

St. Vincent's Orphan's Home was made happy last week by a handsome gift from Thomas F. Walsh and his daughter, Mrs. Josephine McLean. An ivory cross and crib from the home, selected with excellent taste, was the handsome offering of the Walsh family and was brought from the Holy Land by the donors. The cross stands four feet in height, and is carved with tiny angels clinging to it in graceful poses. In it is a figure of the Infant Jesus in His arms.

Both cross and crib were slightly damaged in transit and were therefor repaired by Father Vincent's. Mr. Walsh having them repaired after their arrival in Denver. They are now in the pretty chapel at St. Vincent's orphanage.

Mr. Walsh and his daughter, Mrs. McLean, have always been generous toward St. Vincent's. A previous gift was a Steinway piano given in memory of Mr. Walsh's son, Vincent Walsh, who was killed in an automobile accident a few years ago. When the orphanage burned in 1902 Mr. Walsh telegraphed $5,000 from Washington to afford relief to the sisters and their little charges.

Church Notes.

Miss Helen Burns, a member of the class of 1909, Immaculate Conception High school, has gone to St. Louis, Mo., to enter the novitiate of the Sisters of the Good Shepherd. Miss Burns is the second alumna of the Immaculate Conception High school to embrace a religious life, and the prayers of her old associates are with her. Miss Burns is the daughter of Dr. C. P. Burns of 245 West Fourth avenue, and her family is one of the oldest and best known in Denver.

The young woman possesses rare beauty and charm of manner, and her deeply religious nature has made her admired and respected by all who know her.

Tumor has it that several of the young women of the cathedral parish are to enter the convent this fall.

Personal.

Miss Leona Dwyer of Kansas City, who has been visiting her cousin, Miss Mary Connelly, has returned to her home after a delightful summer.

Mrs. Daniel G. Monaghan and little daughter, Mrs. Mary, have gone east for a two months' visit with relatives of Dr. Monaghan.

Miss Marion Fitzgerald of 1620 Clark street is to be a student at the Miss Wolcott school during the new term.

The fall opening of school carried the young boys and girls away from Denver in all directions to colleges and convents. While the local institutions drew their full quota of students, the outside schools also took from Denver. Miss Eva Sullivan of 1673 York street went back to St. Mary's at Leavenworth, where she has been for the past two terms. Miss Edna Straub, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Straub of 1732 High street, went to Sinsinewa Mound, Wis., to the Dominican convent, and with her went Miss Mabel Walsh, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Walsh of North Denver. Miss Ethel Kearns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Kearns of 1531 Grant street, entered St. Mary's of the Woods at Terre Haute, Ind. Miss Ursula Forhan, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R. J. Forhan, has gone to St. Mary's at Leavenworth.

Little Miss Patricia Barry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Barry of 1559 Adams street, accompanied her grandparents to Nebraska after they had paid a visit at her home in Denver.

Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Barry are rejoicing over the birth of a little daughter. One of the most elaborate weddings of the season was that which on Wednesday evening, Sept. 1, united Miss Leona Menados Gonzalez and James Quayle Thompson of San Diego, Cal. The ceremony was performed in the sacristy of Sacred Heart church by Rev. Father Krantz. The bride wore a beautiful empire gown of white, de chine, with long tulle veil held in place by a wreath of valley lilies. Her shower bouquet was also of valley lilies.

Miss Charlott Harris, the bride's cousin, was maid of honor, and her bridesmaid was Miss Alice Davies. Arthur C. Bowman was best man. The bride was given away by her grandfather, Lemuel Cook. After the ceremony a reception was tendered the young couple at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. A. H. Harris, after which Mr. and Mrs. Thompson left for Glenwood Springs to spend their honeymoon. They will be at home after Sept. 15 at the Marcella apartments, 1625 Washington street. Mrs. Thompson is the daughter of Mrs. Ida Lee Stevens, and her popularity is attested by the number of pre-nuptial entertainments given in her honor. Mr. Thompson has only recently come to Denver, but has already attained an enviable position among the architects of the city. He is a grandson of William J. Quayle, one of the pioneer architects of Denver.

ter, who came to brighten their home last week.

Dr. and Mrs. J. J. O'Neil of the cathedral parish were visitors at Glen Park last week.

Father Cone, chaplain of St. Joseph's hospital, has been slightly indisposed this week.

St. Clara's Aid society will resume meetings after Oct. 1.

The Sacred Heart Aid society met on Thursday afternoon with Miss Julia McLaughlin, 1329 St. Paul street.

St. Vincent's Aid society held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. C. P. Howard, 146 West Irvington place.

Personal.

Miss Margaret W. Rels and Collingwood L. Spence were quietly married Monday evening at St. Leo's rectory by Rev. Florence J. Lawlor, assistant priest of St. Leo's church. Mr. and Mrs. Spence will make their home in Denver.

Rev. Lawrence Fede, S. J., pastor of Holy Family church, Berkeley, officiated at a double marriage ceremony Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. McKernon, 4402 Lowell boulevard. The contracting parties were Miss Edith Fennell and Roy McKernon and Miss May Deegan and Arthur Garland Dibbans. Miss Edith Fennell was maid of honor for both brides, while Mr. Pique attended the groom in both. Music was rendered by Miss Marie Schreck. After the marriage an informal reception was held on the lawn, which was brilliantly illuminated. About two hundred guests called during the hour. Mr. and Mrs. Dibbans went immediately to home, keeping in their pretty new home on Irving street. After a short honeymoon in Colorado Springs, Mr. and Mrs. McKernon will also make their home in Denver.

A quiet but interesting wedding of last week was that of Miss Mary Kitti, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kitti, and James J. Kelly. The ceremony was performed Tuesday evening by Rev. William O'Ryan, pastor of St. Leo's church, at the home of the bride, 223 West Second avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Kelly left the same evening for an extended eastern visit, after which they will be at home at 177 South Clarkson street, Denver.

Mrs. P. C. McCarthy has returned from her summer outing in the mountains.

Mrs. James W. Casey and children have returned from Ocean Park, Cal., where they spent the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Brown and Miss Helen Brown have returned from Glenwood Springs.

Miss Mary A. O'Connell has returned to her home in Leavenworth, Kan., after a pleasant vacation spent in Denver.

Peter A. Conroy, fire commissioner of New Orleans, La., was a Denver visitor last week.

Mrs. Patrick Sullivan of the cathedral parish, who has been at St. Joseph's hospital for some weeks suffering from ptomaine poisoning, is now on the road to recovery.

Canton and Ottomar O'Donnell, sons of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. O'Donnell, left during the week for the east to resume their studies. Canton will begin his sophomore year at Yale, while Ottomar will enter Princeton.

Mr. and Mrs. Benedict J. Baker have returned to O'Quay after a pleasant visit in Denver.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Francis arrived last week from New York and will spend a few weeks with Mrs. Francis' mother, Mrs. Bessie Coughlin, 2509 Gaylord street.

Mrs. W. J. Mykens has fully recovered from a very severe illness.

Mrs. T. P. McAndrews and family have returned from Buffalo park, where they had a cottage for the summer.

Mrs. John Murphy and children closed their cottage at Buffalo park this week and returned to their Denver home.

C. F. Hynes is spending his vacation at his mountain home at Dome Rock.

Mrs. Leonard Doss entertained at dinner Friday evening at her home, 1735 Washington street.

Mrs. Frank P. Lynch has returned from an eastern visit.

Mrs. John Van Duzick and little son, Bennie, have returned from Buffalo park, where they spent part of last week.

Mrs. T. Walter Beam and children have returned from a visit to Seattle.

Miss Ella Phelan is in Seattle.

The Friday 600 club held its initial party of the season last week at the home of Mrs. W. A. Granger, 2130 Downing avenue. Mrs. Granger entertained at an elaborate luncheon, after which the club was formally and regularly launched upon its club year. Those who will compose the club this winter are Mrs. W. A. Granger, president; Mrs. Frank W. Barry, Mrs. M. J. McCarty, Mrs. Joseph C. Hagus, Mrs. M. C. Harrington, Mrs. James Grady, Mrs. E. H. Benton, Miss Kate Flerty, Mrs. H. A. Reyer, Mrs. Joseph A. Omer, Mrs. T. J. Carlin, Miss Julia McLaughlin, Mrs. Frank Kirchhof, Mrs. G. L. Moffitt and Mrs. E. G. Straub.

Miss Kate Flaherty has returned from Eldorado Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. George Allen Smith and little daughter, Allene, have returned from a delightful tour of the great lakes.

Miss Madeline Wilkin spent last week at Buffalo park, the guest of Miss Vita McAndrews.

Miss Marie Mykens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Mykens, has gone to Canon City, where she will attend school this year at Mount St. Scholastica's academy.

Obituary.

The funeral of Mrs. Rose Smith, who died on Tuesday, Aug. 31, at her home, 1224 California street, took place on Thursday with high requiem mass at St. Elizabeth's church. Burial was in Mount Olivet cemetery. Mrs. Smith is survived by a daughter, Miss Anna Smith.

After an illness of nearly twelve years John McKenna passed away at St. Joseph's hospital on Monday, Sept. 6. His funeral took place Thursday morning from St. Joseph's church. Burial was in Mount Olivet cemetery. Mr. McKenna leaves a widow and four children. The family home is at 517 West Seventh avenue.

Fortune for Bishop.

By leasing the valuable mining property at Central City known as the Old German mine, Bishop Nicholas C. Matz of the Catholic diocese of Denver, is in a fair way to become a millionaire, while the Philadelphia capitalists who have begun operating the mine are placing on the market the richest deposits of uranium in the world, says the Denver Times.

THE PAPAL COOK.

(London Globe.) Stefano Inchiostro is the name of the Pope's cook. He has recently been relating his experiences in the Vatican from which it is seen that his post is a veritable sinecure.

For twenty-seven years he was the cook in the seminary of the Patriarch of Venice, the dignity held by the Pope before his call to the chair of St. Peter, and consequently was well known to his holiness. On June 22, 1903, Stefano received a summons from his old master to repair to the Vatican.

He went, and was conducted to the presence of the Pope, and it was only the generosity of the Pontiff that placed the cook at his ease, for he was greatly amused. The cook enables us to have a glimpse of the daily life of his venerable master, who is an example of Horace's "obiter" that change of place does not alter the man. After celebrating mass the Pontiff takes a little coffee. Precisely at noon he lunches, in company with Mgr. Pacini and Mgr. Bresson. They are always served by a particular valet de chambre.

The repast is modest in the extreme. Some soup, a little meat from the soup, and rarely is there a roasted joint. At 9 o'clock the Pope takes his supper, more frugal, if possible, than the mid-day meal. Vegetables and a little meat is the night repast. In winter the Pope takes more soup than in summer, made from dried vegetables.

His holiness is very fond of the "polenta" (coupe de maïs), made as it was in the days past in Venice, and it is generally accompanied by some fish sent from Civita Vecchia or Venice.

Some Recent Converts.

(London Catholic Times.) From time to time we find good advice offered to those who serve the truth by controversy. As for controversy in itself, there can be no doubt that it is a holy and necessary work, which has been practiced by saints and doctors in all ages. It is difficult, therefore, to approve of the idea put forward sometimes that all controversy should be eschewed and abandoned. Some educated Catholics there are, or were, who have even said and boasted that they have never entered into controversy, meaning that they have taken it as a rule never to do so. It is difficult to approve of this rule, surrounded on all sides as our people are with what may be called jets of controversy, spouting forth errors every day. Those who make the boast for the needs of our own people. Controversy, then, divides itself into two parts—one directed to instruct Catholics, the other to convince Protestants. Both of these are well approved of in the annals of our own church in England. We can hardly name one of our great bishops, priests and writers who have not engaged in controversy. The list, indeed, is too long to give here. Again, controversy branches out into two other well defined and approved departments. There is the controversy to instruct and convert; there is the controversy to expose and denounce. All those have to be considered. General exhortations to mildness and charity ought to be supplemented with particular rules of controversy called for by the requirements of truth on the one hand and of heresy on the other. It is true, indeed, that some who are not fitted for the work take a part in this difficult task; but there are others who are fitted for it who do it well and who ought to be encouraged in following out a mission divinely provided for the salvation of souls.

Catholics and Controversy. (Philadelphia Catholic Standard and Times.) Miss Ida Hitchcock, daughter of the Rev. Charles Hitchcock, head of the Hitchcock Military academy of San Rafael, Cal., formerly rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, has announced her intention of becoming a nun in the Catholic church. She took the white veil on her novitiate at the convent of the Sisters of the Holy Name, in Oakland on Aug. 18.

"I have given my full consent to Ida becoming a nun," the Rev. Mr. Hitchcock said in an interview on the subject. "I do not think that I should be a barrier between her and her duty as she sees it."

The San Francisco Monitor says: "The wonderful spirit of St. Ignatius, which has sent men proclaiming the cross into all corners of the world, lives stronger than ever today, and is kept keenly alive wherever the great Jesuit order is established. It is the spirit of the teacher and the missionary, and it works at home as well as in the field afar." Here, in San Francisco—a fitting celebration of St. Ignatius' feast—four new converts have just been received at St. Ignatius' church, all "High church" Episcopalians.

Among those lately received into the church are:

Mrs. Theodore Wattson Hall of Cornwall-on-Hudson, N. Y., daughter of the late Rev. Joseph Wattson of the Episcopal church and sister of Rev. Father Paul, Superior of the Anglican Community of the Atonement and editor of the Lamp.

Mrs. Roswell Parke Sherwood, Chicago, late a member of All Saints' Episcopal church, Ravenswood.

Mr. Campbell of Dunstaffnage, head of one of the oldest families in Scotland, has been received into the Catholic church.

Rev. Dr. Hudson of the Protestant church of Ireland.

Mrs. Julia Palmer Stevens of Bloomington, Ill., widow of a Methodist minister, who was presiding elder of different conferences for many years, and youngest sister of General John M. Palmer, former Governor of Illinois, United States senator of the same state and candidate for the presidency. Mrs. Stevens is also a noted linguist, was professor of modern languages in Illinois college, in Jacksonville. A noted pupil in the Sunday school class taught by her was William Jennings Bryan. She has contributed for years to publications of the Methodist denomination, as well as to many other papers and magazines, and is also a translator of French and German books.

A TRUE NOBLEMAN.

The lately deceased Marquis of Ripon was a true nobleman as well in his actual life as by rank in the British peerage. Before his conversion to Catholicism many years ago he held high office in the Freemason order, which, of course, he withdrew from on or before his reception into the church. At his funeral service the eloquent Father Bernard Vaughan, S. J., pronounced the eulogy, in the course of which he noted as follows the earnest and simple piety that marked the character of the man:

"I must tell you, shortly before he breathed his last, his chaplain attempted to draw from him a crucifix that he might bless him with it, but our dying friend looked up, smiled, and with both his hands clasped his cross, as though he meant to say, 'I cannot part with it for a moment.' When the end came, like a child falling asleep, he closed his eyes forever to this world, but he opened them to see the smile of the Master he served so loyally. May we not believe he heard the words: 'Well done, well done, enter into the joy of thy Lord?'"

"Truly a nobleman in the best sense."
